The National Board of Accreditation (NBA) is an autonomous body established by All India Council of Technical Education (AICTE), New Delhi for periodic evaluation of programmes offered by various technical institutions across our country. At present, as per Washington Accord, NBA has a two-tier system of accreditation for undergraduate engineering programmes, namely TIER-I and TIER-II format. The Tier –I format is applicable to the engineering and technology programmes offered by Academically Autonomous Institutions, University Departments and Constituent Colleges of the Universities. Tier-II format is applicable for the non-autonomous institutions which are affiliated to a university.
